its successful operation.

Opium has long been a cause of serious international conflict, China and Great Britain having gone to war on the subject in 1840, when the "opium war" finally resulted in the cession of Hongkong to Great Britain. The re-cent movement for the suppression of the trade in habit-forming drugs is American in origin. Beginning in 1906, a systematic effort to secure this result by international action, the State Department succeeded in the creation international commission, which in Shanghai in 1902, and paved way for the more official gathering of delegates at The liague in De-cember, 1911. This conference after two months of hard work agreed upon the form of a general convention, which, broadly speaking, was calculated to put an end to international dealing
